The Great Information and Good Advice a Talented Woman Can Give.

One of the most skillful nurses in this country is Mrs. Elizabeth D. Berry, of Hampton, N. H. She is a lady of the widest experience among diseases of all kinds, and has cheered many a sick room by her hopeful and encouraging words.

The following extracts from a communication written by her will be read with great interest to all. Her advice is worthy of the greatest consideration on account of the high reputation of

"I am a nurse, and when nursing my sister I had as a nurse, and her words are especially valuable because of their great encouragement to all the classes of sufferers.

"Through trouble and overwork," she writes, "I got nervous, weak, dizzy, faint, and exhausted from nervous prostration, until I became entirely helpless. Thanks to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I am now so well and strong that every one who sees me is very much surprised. I would like to tell the whole world of women what Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has done for me, and to recommend all women to use this wonderful medicine.

It also to a lady suffering from great nervous prostration, who could not get help from the physicians. She is now well, strong and flesh and she says should have been in her grave if not for Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I have recommended it to many others, with the same wonderful success, and I now especially say that if women between the ages of 40 and 60 years would take there would be a great change in their health and in the course that takes place. I hear this wonderful medicine named and blessed everywhere, and I am glad to add my testimony to its great value, and truth and call it a saviour of our women."

Mrs. Bergey writes: "My disease is indurated, and I have been treated by many of the best physicians. Generally Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is indeed a wonder."

THE PARROT GOT EVEN.

Result of a Citizen's Effort to Teach It to Say "Father."

There is a gentleman living on West Adams street who has a parrot that it

A little nettled, but not to be defeated, the interfamily took the bird and returned to the city. The bird, however, continued to call out, "Father, you wretched bird." B.

to make the refractory pupil attempt the least to do as bidden.

Several similar and fruitless trials were made, and at last, finally the owner became rather provoked himself, and, taking the parrot by one foot and another limb close to the eyes, he pronounced him out of saunter; he declared to his wife, "I'll fix him. I'll make him so ashamed he'll give in. He'll say 'Father, or Mother, or I will do as I am bidden.' And with a chicken coop was tipped a little one side and stubborn Poll was thrust among a dozen chickens.

"Now we'll see," said the man of Adams street, the house.

"In an hour or so he pushed open the kitchen green door, stepped out, and did 'see.'"

Upon the ground, inside of the coop stood Mr. Parrot, lord of the manor, and with his claw clasped on the neck of the twelfth, the parrot was squawing in the highest key: "Say 'Father, say 'Father,

WHICH WAS THE BRIGHT ONE

Peculiar Remark that Amused Man in the Corner.

They were discussing families, and c was up in which there were several girls says an exchange.

"Where is Allie?" asked the lady w and she had been for some

"She's teaching school," said Jennie.
"And Kate?"
"She's dead."
"And Frances?"
"She's in a store."
"Let's see, there was a Jennie and a Harriet, too, wasn't there?"
"Yes."
"Jennie was the brightest one of the lot, wasn't she?"
"Oh, no!"—in all seriousness—"there was Harriet, Jennie got married."

And not one of the half-dozen women talking seemed to think there was anything funny in it when a man over in the corner laughed.
